WHEELING THROUGH EUROPE.

Bicycle Tourist Tells How Enjoyable

A Bievele Tenrist Tells How Enjoyable Such Traveling, is.

One scarcely realizes, till he has tried it how lutie is the expense of a bievele trip through Europe. To the practical American wheelman the first question is, "What does it cost?" From the experience of one who has been through the Tressachs of Scotland and the cathedral towns of England, who has ridden up the Rhine and climbed, half a dozen or more of the Alpine passes in Switzerland, and has spent nearly a month each in the cities of London and Faris the cost is found to have been title more than it would have been to have continued in the dull routine of home life. To be sure, there is the lost time of those who have only salaried in comes. Once over here, while the traveler by ordinary means of conveyance is de batting whether to go second or third class or to buy Cook's tourists tickets or the regular ones the wheelman selects an in dependent route and without waiting upon the manner of going goes. Besides, the going instead of being a matter of great expense, as it sometimes is by steam or horse power on the contrary over the perfect roads of Europe, is a mean-sof enjoyable exercise that not only does not decrease the bank account, but increases the stock of physical health. After nearly four months or 1 800 miles, of such de lightful traveling in the present case the limited letter of credit is still found so lightful traveling in the present case the limited letter of credit is still found so bulky that a ride through southern France along the Riviera down through Italy and over to the Pyramids is to be under and over to the Pyramids is to be under taken soon

But as to the cost, so far, in dollars and cents While the English hotels are as a rule, I think more expensive than those on the continent, yet in either case, my expenses did not average over $2 a day in fact through Belgium and Germany they were but $1 a day. A wheelman travels so independently that he is not all ways obliged to stop over night fat the larger cities and I often could avoid them by riding eight or ten miles further to some small inn I found plenty of good food and a comfortable bed for half the money such a mode of traveling does not allow of the putting on of any great amount of style but my chief ambition was to see rather than to be seen of men In London there are plenty of good, re spectable private boarding places to be found for $1 or $1.25 a day. To find them one needs only to inquire of some friend who has made an extended etay in London or to apply to some American living there. I found a good place on Enston road within a mile and a half, or a four cent omnibus ride of Fleet street for $7.50 a week. That included the room, and attendance a meat breakfast at $30 and a four or five course dinner at 6.00. The nuncheon at 12, if had was extra but it was usually more convenient to take a light lincheon wherever I hap pened to be.

This time he was mad He gesticulated wildly and talked so dast I could say nothing. Finally when I could get in a word, I said I did not under stand and could only speak English. You are an Englishman' he said in French I could understand, but without cooling down any. No I said I am an American. Oh, he replied quickly, pass on and he stepped aside with a wave of his hand as pleasantly as could be I happened I have since found out, to be riding in some of the drives from which we are prohibited. Many of the English and German wheelmen use little sleigh bells fastened to the handle little sleigh bells fastened to the handle bars as warnings to pedestrians but in Switzerland where the noise of running water drowns all other ordinary sounds in so many localities I found that my shrill whistle oven was insufficient and nothing but the most threat-splitting yell would clear the read of the numerous pedestrians. Here in Paris the wheelmen have adeq of the train car here an in stranger to the author bulb for forcing that a dat it the train that have been stranged in the an throu h and really one blast from those phrumatic levers is enough to lift a whole regiment out of the road—deorge B Thayer in New York World

Simple Method for Reanimation At a meeting of the last congress of German scientists this subject was dis-cussed and Dr. H. Frank mentioned that there are but two ways to stimulate the heart—dectricity and mechanical concus sion of the heart—The first is considered sion of the hear. The first is considered dangerous by him as it may easily destroy the last power of contraction remaining in the organ. But what is termed 'pec torul concussion is deadedly preferable. Dr. Franks method is as follows. Ho flexes the hands on the wrist to an obtuse angle places them both near each other in the flecoescal region and makes vigor cus strokes in the direction of the heart and of the diaphragm. These strokes are repeated from fifteen to twenty times, and are succeeded by a panuse during which he strikes the chest over the heart. In peatedly with the pulm of his heard. he strikes the class over the heart repeatedly with the palm of his hand. In taverable cases this method as early successful and semetimes a twitching of the lids or the angles of the mouth appears with surprising rapidity as the first sign of its urning life. As soon as these symptoms are noted the slumple manipulations above accepted must be earnestly continued a depreserved in from a half to one hour for with their cessation, the phenomena indicating beginning of return phenomena industing beginning of return of life also cease. Generally the face as sumes a slight reddish that and at the sumes a sight reduish that and at the same time a faint pulsation may be felt in the carotid. By this method Dr. Frank has seen life return in fourteen cases among whom were such as had burg them school whom were such as not hand them selves drowned and asphyxiated by car bonic oxide and in one case by croup— Herala of Health

They are successors to a business that has been conducted in this city for nearly thirty years. They know the wants of their customers and supply those wants. They can afford to sell at lower prices than others (for same grades) for they are larger purchasers. They buy direct of the largest manufacturers in the United States to supply their wholesale trade. Their connection with the Chicago house of L. L. THE New York Herabl says that the presidential election will be decided by New York, and the result in that state will be determined by the result in the city of New York. In other words, Cleveland must have New York or be defeated. If the slums of the city can cast enough votes to overbalance the Republican vote of the state—or, which is the same thing. can count enough -- he will get the electoral vote of New York, in addition to the solid south. These two choice sections of the country are to be depended on to outweigh the great Northwest, the enterprising New England states and the great state of Pennsylvania. Fine pros-

THE Murchison letter to Lord Sackville, turns out to have been a genuine letter from a man named Murchison, written in good faith, and that the reply was withheld from the public for a month after its receipt. All the Democratic hoise, therefore, about the letter having been forged by Blaine, or Steve Elkins, or some other rascally Republican, turns out to be only wind. The Democrats seem to naturally account for everything of this character by crying "forgery," They cannot appreciate the fact that Republicans are not in the habit of coorning to methods on which the other side holds letters patent.

Wr have talked with a good many people from Macon within a few days, and unless they all prevaricate the trade between the Democratic prohibitionists and the Democratic party in that locality s agreed upon. The Dem. Pros. are to ast their votes for Palmer. Whether he Democrats are to vote for Fisk or not we do not know. Everything goes to show that the Republican prohibitionists have been sold out as usual.

ists of Brooklyn. BROOKLYN, Nov. 4 .- Last night at the Clermont Avenue Rink, Breoklyn, under the auspices of the Irish Protectionists, a final effort was made to induce the voters in the city to cost their votes for Harri son and Morton. The building was pack ed, over five thousand people being pres ent. Mr. Bitine came upon the pistform, and smid turnultuous applianse, said:

and amid turnultuous applianse, said:

It is one of the mie icities of a public speaker in a political cambaigh that, by the time people are thoroughly aroused to the importance of the pen iog issues, the speaker himself is pretty thoroughly worn out. And he is worn out in trying to arouse the people to the point where they now are all over the United States on the question of American industry. [Applianse?] Id d not come here to night to make a lengthy speech, but briefly to sum up the case. The speaker tilen propounded a number of questions to the audience concerning the issues of the present campaign, principally with regard to protection and free trade. He attacked the Administration policy for loaning sixty millions dol-lars out of the public treasury to favorite banks without interest, and said that he had learned recently that it not only loaned this money, but it had loaned the money through the agency of a bank money through the agency of a bank established by Mr. Jordan and the late Mr. Manning, and had given that bank a fixed balance of civers million dellars to the bank and the bank and the bank and the bank and the bank to be a bank call their own, and allowed the bank to peddle out the sixty mullion dollars to other banks, thereby getting the busi-ness of a large number of banks throughout the country. He declared that Louis XIV., the Czar of Russia or Napoleon would not not have dared treat the treasury of their countries that way, and expressed surprise that the revelation did not create a sensation; he denied the statement of certain papers that Secretary Sherman had done the same thing. He had heard a few days ago that a Republican had deserted his party and gone over to the Democrats and upon investigation learned that he was a bank president and he had a million dollar deposit. He thanked God that many could not be bought for that price, for the money would not hold out. He declared that the Administration should be turned out for this disposal of the sixty million dollars in bonds if for noth-

Mr. Blaine then went on as follows: I want to give you another question, and it is not one of those final company stories that you must all be on the lookout for—for you must be keenly on the lookout for them from now until Tuesday evening. This last one is no contract that the Paralleles Secretary. in accusation that the Republican Senate has added an amendment to Mr. Cleveland's ex an accusation that the Republican Senate has added an amendment to Mr. Cleveland's extradition treaty with England so that it will operate with great severity upon Irishmen who come to this country. The first thing that I would ask you, Mr. Charrinan, is, how did that extratition treaty happen to come before the Senate of the United States. The Republican Senators did not have any power to bring that treaty there. It was made by Mr. Cleveland's Secretary of State, Mr. Rayard. [A voice: "He's English, you know," It was made by and with the address of the President and sent to the Senate. The Republican partly is in a majority in the Senate, and if they wanted to confirm it, why hasn't it seen the light? They say Republicans are going to launch that treaty upon the country. They have held it against the Mannistration and against the Democratic Senators. I saw, to my regret, in an firsh paper the allegation made that the treaty halb been nuriously amended by a Republican concurre and reported to the Senate by a Republic in committee. I state positively, and I state of my own knowledge, that there is not a purebody discussion for that allegation and its includes. The sheries treaty, which surrendered our rights in the fish it, which surrendered our rights in the fish it was the Verk vesterday.

"HOME COMFORT" FURNACES.

Wrought Steel, Malleable Iron, No Leaky Joints.

No one can say that the time was not ripe for a new furnace. The days of brittle, porous, cast iron furnaces are numbered. In every branch of manufacture cast iron is being driven out by wrought iron and steel. Every bridge that goes down in a wreck of lives and property is found to have cast iron members. Every bursting cannon which slays its friends rather than its enemies is made of cast iron. Every leaky furnace which poisons a household with its noisome gases is found to be made of the same cheap, unreliable material. Improved methods of manufacture have made steel and iron plate, of first quality, less expensive than cast iron formerly was, and it is plainly in accord with progress in other directions that there should be progress both in design and the material of furnaces for warming our homes, churches and schools.

Legend of the Pipesione Quarty.

This blood red stone has a peculiar significance, and is an object of veneration to the Indian. Since taught by "Maniton" the Great Spirit warlike tribes have gathered here in peace, to worship, dig the stone and smore the calumet. Relies of camps may be traced in great numbers, by the stones placed in circles, now nearly buried from sight, except when prairle firms sweep over them. Legends say that a remnant of red men were driven from a deluge to the top of this rocky crest, where an eagle had built her nest, and that the rising waters swallowed all but one maiden, who clung to the eagle for safety. When the waters receded, the Great Spirit found a cliff of rocky warriors turned into shining jasper! In solemn wrath he cowed that henceforth the tribes should meet here only in peace, that no war whole, should be heard, no bow and arrow or tomanawk should be seen at this rendezvous, but hereafter the tribes should ascendible there each year to wash off their war paint in the lake, bury the hatchet and smoke the peace pipe, in token of which the maiden and war eagle should sacrifice a milk white bison—a rare and sacred beast, and an object of ceremonious and mysterious sacrifice 2. It was laid on the altar of jasper, when lot the dames of heaven descended, as lightning, connecting the stem of Maniton's pipe with the altar, from whence rose sweet incense, the blood of the sacrifice staining the crag a crimson stain. A Hint to Smokers.

It is remarkable that people smoke or much tobacco, in its various forms, that is impragnated with deadly ulcotine, when hy a simple method, which would not detract one whit from its good quality, but would remove all that is objectionable, the tobacco could be made free of this poison. Merely soak the tobacco a day in a shallow trough, and then lay it in the sun, if feasible; if not, dry by the most convenient means, and the weed is robbed of all odorferous properties andaff nicotine. It is then so sweet the times would not offend the most sensitive lady, because it has no fumes. Besides, the vessel in which it is burned does not become "strong"—a valuable thing for a man who prefers a meerschaum pipe to cigars.—Sergt. McNamee in Globe-Democrat. Does More Injury Than Benefit.

We are partly bamboozled by tradition. From our youth up we are deafened on all sides by advice to "reed and improve our minds." The inference is that the mind is improved by reading. But that inference is open to the most serious question. For my part, i should be willing to hazard the statement that twice as many minds have been injured than have been benefited by it, and not a small proportion of the former have been made entirely worthics by the practice. It is just like drain drinking—it is intellectual drain drinking—and "intellectual" is scarcely the word to use in that connection.

One reason is no doubt, that the drains in question are, for the most part, of very inferior stuff. But even if it were of the best sturi imaginable, the detrimental effects and in the control of the former than the detrimental effects.

Cremation Furnaces in Paris. Four large evenation furnaces have been declared open at the great Parisian cometery of Pero-la-Chaise. The question is agitated whether pauper bodies should be cremated by the Paris municipality, but there is such a strong feeling against it among the poor that the idea will probably have to be abandoned. It is usually the wealthy who prefer cremation.—New York Sun.

in question are, for the most part, or very inferior stuff. But even if it were of the best stuff imaginable, the detrimental effect would remain. The finest Madeira, if swallowed in sufficiently copious doses, will produce delirium tremens; and the most unexceptional books, if they are also toe numerous, will bring on mental dyspopsia. The mind becomes a mere sach to hold other people's ideas, instead of a machine to generate ideas of its own. And the ideas thus acquired are of no use to it. The mind has lost the power to work them into the fiesh and blood of wisdom. They remain a heterogeneous and incongruous mass. Foreign material, whether physical or intellectual, should be taken in with discrimination and moderation, and thereugishy assimilated. Unless you need and like it, you cannot make it yours; whether you swallow it or not, it really stops cutside of you.—Julian flavythorne in America. She Was a Smart Girl. Taxing Women Who Marry.

The Mews of London.

A peculiar feature of London, to begin who are the so called mews. The name mews originally applied to the royal stables, though whether on account of the characteristic melody of the east that congregate around such establishments, or for some more classical cause, has never been explained. It gradually came to be adopted for the alleys in the rear of fash thoughts managious on which the stables own, and, in fact, for any street of stables. The mews of London are streets or referred.
